Little Evelyn Howland's story of the Garden of Eden, which the REGISTER published last week, reminded the "Kansas Topics" man of the K. C. Journal of a little Hayes City girl who tried to tell her mother of the subject of the Sunday school lesson and accomplished it after this fashion: "Let little children come to supper and put bibs on them not, for of such there is nothing in the kingdom of heaven."

The attention of our country patrons especially is called to the advertisement of Shannon & Horville on page 5 of this paper. The REGISTER has often cautioned its readers as to the wisdom of patronizing home dealers, who are here to make good every contract they make, and from whom goods of every description can always be bought at a much lower price than traveling agents can possibly afford to sell them. The matter alluded to in this advertisement furnishes a good opportunity to test the soundness of this advice.

DROUGHT CAUSES FIRE.

Many Indian Territory Homes in Danger of Being Totally Destroyed.

SILGAM SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 5.—A destructive prairie fire broke out at an early hour yesterday morning in the Indian territory near here and the flames are eating everything before them. The loss already amounts to many thousands of dollars. Owing to the large area of country covered it is impossible to arrive at a definite estimate of the property consumed. It will be several days before the full force of the flames are spent, unless rain falls immediately. So dense is the smoke here that the western horizon is as dark as a bank of rain clouds. The excessive heat and dry weather of the past few days, which has parched the prairies and dried up the grass, is responsible for the fire. No such drought has ever been experienced in the Indian country and not a drop of rain has fallen there in more than eight weeks, and in many instances the earth has cracked open, leaving crevices wide enough to admit a team of horses.
